Made with insect protein!

Why Insect Protein?

Insect protein completely replaces conventional protein while adding functional benefits and superior palatability.

Sustainable

Circular Economy

Insects can quickly convert large quantities of low-quality biomass such as organic waste into high-quality proteins. The insect fertilizer can be used as a soil improver, similar to compost. Insect farming thus contributes to a circular economy.

Consumes Fewer Natural Resources

Insects need far less of our natural resources such as water and land to produce a kilogram of protein. The CO2 emissions are also very low compared to other protein sources.

Hypoallergenic

Have you ever heard that a dog is allergic to insects? That's because insects are rarely used as a protein source in pet food, so the chance is very small that a dog has developed an allergy to this.

Pure & Natural

Free of antibiotics & growth hormones

Insects are grown without the use of antibiotics and growth hormones. This is in contrast to their frequent use in the meat industry.

Safe

The production of insect to protein takes place at one location, so there are no transports until the final processing of the protein. As a result, there is no chance of contamination with pathogens.
